Notes

- The bounding description must sufficiently define the extent of the subjects to enable the Keeper to identify them on the Ordnance Map.
This may be achieved by supplying the Keeper with:-
 - a plan with boundaries of stated lineal dimensions or boundaries which can be measured from an adequate scale appearing on the face of the plan, the position of the property being tied by stated measurements to road junctions or other features which are depicted on the Ordnance Map, or
 - such a plan, together with a postal address, but without the position of the property being so tied to features which are depicted on the Ordnance Map, or
 - a written description which includes measurements and refers to adjoining subjects by name or street number and not by the name of the owner, together with a postal address.
- Insert postal address.
- Delete whichever is inapplicable.

RESULT OF COMPARISON OF BOUNDING DESCRIPTION WITH THE O.S. MAP

- 1 ~~— The subjects are not identifiable on the O.S. Map.~~
- 2 ~~— The boundaries of the subjects coincide with those on the O.S. Map.~~
- 3 The boundaries do not coincide with those on the O.S. Map

3A. The extent of the subjects shown on your plan, have been plotted and tinted pink and blue on the enclosed extract from the Ordnance Survey (OS) map for your assistance. This extent creates an overlap between the subjects and the features depicted on the OS map.

The fenced extent of the subjects as depicted on the current edition of the OS map appears to be as tinted pink on the extract. The area tinted blue would appear to lie outwith the fenced extent of subjects on the O.S. Map.

Subjects have been amended to exclude area disposed to British Gas Plc as per your letter of 25th August 2004.

Please note that the nature of the feature dividing the areas cannot be determined from the Ordnance map.

Please see the enclosed guidance notes on how to proceed prior to submitting an application for registration.
